FURMAN FINISHING FAR AHEAD

As election day fast approaches it becomes more manifest day by day that Henry M. Furman will lead all his opponents for the United States senate.

From all parts of the new state come reliable reports that Furman is the favorite among the plain, unpurchasable people. In some places where he speaks he is received with demonstrations amounting to no less than ovations. The indications are unmistakable that he will get a heavy vote in all localities.

It is a beautiful race Furman is running. In this campaign unprecedented in the amount of money expended; with opponents, big rich, spending thousands upon thousands in hiring helpers and boosters and in buying literature and newspaper space; nevertheless Furman marches serenely on toward the goal, without money to buy help, spurning to so commercialize the campaign even had he the money, depending solely on the hearty support of his friends and on the great body of unmercenary voters.

And Furman is marching on with confidence; for well he knows the vast majority of sovereign voters are unpurchasable and ungullible, and are not snobs and parasites to be attracted by fuss and display and by the gleam of gold.

When Furman goes to the senate what a satisfaction and an honor it will be that not a single vote that helped send him will have been bought or coerced! Every one of them the ballot of a free, independent acting man!

That's the way Furman is going to Washington. Then when he gets there he will be free and clean and resolute for the real service of the people of this land.

SOME REASONS FOR OTIS B. WEAVER FOR THE STATE SENATE

He has the intellectual and common sense qualifications for the office—just as have other men in this district, among them farmers, editors, lawyers, and men of other occupations.

He is a man to be trusted, one whose integrity no one can question. The scoundrel who tried to buy him off would have to fight.

He is in full sympathy with the masses; their interests are his every time they come in conflict with the classes. Springing from old Southern planter stock, his sympathies abide with the man between the plowshares, and with all other men who eat their bread in the sweat of their brow. He wishes them to have more bread, and more than bread.

He has during the past few years, as newspaper editor, developed a taste for and acquired a thorough knowledge of public affairs and statecraft; also has acquired a wide acquaintance with public men of the coming state; both of which should be of great value in equipping him for a legislator worth while, one who will be heard from.

He has already won his spurs in the service of the public. For the good of his country and his town he has been notably generous in his support of every worthy cause—supporting them with his newspapers, his pocket book, his hands, and with his tongue. To such an extent is this true that it is a common comment that Weaver has given and done more for this section than any other man.

He possesses a passion for making things go which he takes hold of. During his term of president of Indian Territory Press Association it grew from a listless, poorly organized body to the present dignified and powerful organization it is. As commander of the Indian Territory Division, United Sons of Confederate Veterans, he threw such zeal into the organization as to make the old veterans' hearts swell with pride and make those who attended the reunions look up and take notice of Indian Territory. He is one of those who initiated in this Territory the Good Roads movement. Few men there were who spent more time or money in the cause of statehood. It is a continuing pleasure to him to work for the public weal.

He is an enthusiastic, hard-working party man. According to his means and opportunity, no man has done more for Democracy. The mere suggestion of party service needed—this to him is a command to action.

The enthusiasm, the integrity, the capacity to accomplish things, these attributes he would carry with him into the state senate and into the work of framing a code of laws. In these days of intense action there is no room for drones and mere wind jammers in our legislative halls.

He has told the people in black and white what he would do as a state senator. They can read his definite promises in his platform and other utterances and can keep tab on him to see if he makes good his pledges.

He is a man who has made a record for keeping his promises and fulfilling all obligations. In this land repute to team with grafters, not the faintest imputation of grafter has touched his name. He has been weighed and not been found wanting on any score.

The principles he advocates are just such as every honest, patriotic voter must endorse, such as if carried into effect will insure a splendid code of state laws.

He makes the paramount plank in his platform a wise disposition of the new state school lands, such a disposition of them that the children will obtain the most possible education, and the farmers may obtain homes and borrow cheap money from the state school fund. Read carefully his school land plan. This question is by far the most important part of the first legislature's work.

He stands well at home. He enjoys the esteem and confidence of his neighbors. Without this a man is in poor position to command the confidence of strangers.

Put Weaver in the state senate and make no mistake.

RALLYING TO FURMAN

The Plain People Everywhere Regard Him Their Champion.

Talala, I. T., May 28.—Judge Henry M. Furman spoke in Talala Monday afternoon to a very appreciative crowd. Should he continue to make votes as he did here, he will certainly be one of Oklahoma's first senators, which the writer sincerely hopes he will be.

Mr. Furman is a man of the plain people and is for the masses against the classes. He will be a power for the good of the general masses if given the opportunity to stand up in the halls of the United States senate. In him there is no equivocation; he stands out in the limelight of justice to all men, whatever be their politics, so long as their work is for the building up of the great brotherhood of man and the purification of the laws and the welfare of the great masses of our common country.

The people in this section have an intense admiration for Judge Furman, that noblest stalwart of democracy and lasting friend of the people of greater Oklahoma.

THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE

Herby is announced the Mason Drug Co. a candidate for the Most Popular Drug Store in Pontotoc county, subject to the faction and approval of all people who want PURE DRUGS, HONEST PRICES, and a SQUARE DEAL. And this candidate will be an easy winner!

WILLIAMS MAKES REPLY

Wishes Campaign for Supreme Judge Conducted On Dignified Plane

Hon. S. C. Treadwell,
Tishomingo, Indian Territory.

Dear Sir:
Upon my return home I find yours of the 16th instant, wherein you state that, last night when you made public announcement of your candidacy for the supreme bench that William H. Murray, your fellow townsman, came with a telegram from me and read same to audience, and that Murray by his acts and words emphatically placed me before the people of your county as a candidate relying upon the Haskell forces for my nomination, and that you believe that there is an effort on his part to make the issues between us for the supreme bench the same as the issues between Mr. Cruce and Haskell, and that you desire to know from me whether I ratify or reject the action of Mr. Murray.

In reply I beg to state that that telegram I sent Mr. Murray did not relate to the gubernatorial race, as you well know, but related to a personal matter between you and Mr. Murray, and I presume that accounts for Mr. Murray declaring against you. Mr. Murray well knows what I think about the propriety of a man aspiring for a high judicial position taking part in factional politics, and knows I do not think such a course would be wise or proper; that it would tend to destroy the dignity of the bench, and to bring judicial positions down to a lower plane. I want you to distinctly understand that I do not propose to be aligned with the candidacy of any men or any set of men by you. I place the destinies and the fortunes of the democratic party high above the ambitions of any man, and the hope and boon of statehood above any other consideration except that honor or shall be preserved. I notice that you say, that your canvass is against me, and that you think that the people are entitled to see us and hear us in a joint canvass of the issues that might arise. I want you to distinctly understand that my canvass is not against you; that I am not seeking the office upon your demerits, but solely upon my merits. I would scorn to take a high judicial position on account of the demerits of my opponent. It does seem to me that when you wrote your letter you must have been angry with some one and didn't carefully reflect upon the attitude you were taking before the people of this supreme judicial district. I think the democrats of this proposed great commonwealth are capable of selecting the democratic nominee for governor without any advice or dictation from me. I would not attempt to invade their solemn prerogative. As an American citizen on the 8th day of June I shall register at the ballot box my preference for every nominee, and I can't see as to how it concerns any man to now know how that preference will be registered on that day, especially men that are candidates for high judicial positions. Men seeking high judicial positions should so conduct themselves in the campaign and before the people, and occupy such an impartial position that if they should be elected to the bench and political questions arising out of factional fights should come before the court, and the decisions of the court would be accepted as coming from wise, impartial, faithful and brave judges, and not from rancorous partisans.

What issues can there be between men seeking high judicial positions other than of qualification? My qualifications are before the people, and I propose to submit the issues to them with a proper regard for the proprieties in seeking a judicial position.

I note that you say you want to have a joint canvass of the issues that may arise. What issues can arise between two men that are seeking a judicial position respecting the proprieties that should go with that exalted place? Now if you seek this joint canvass with the view of making any charges against me I will agree to arrange two dates with you at such time as I conveniently can, to speak at Durant and Tishomingo. If you have any charges to make against me I am willing to gratify you, but I want them to be made among people where I have lived practically ever since I came to the Indian Territory. I want to say I have no charges to make against you. If that is to be the price of my election to the bench, then I propose to remain a private citizen, exercising the rights and privileges of a private citizen.

I write this letter both in sadness and in disappointment to think you have this kind of a conception of men seeking this high and exalted place. I want to say to you that the aim of my personal conduct in this campaign shall be so that if I am elected to the place that I can go into the judicial cloister and determine any case where the rights of my fellow man are involved and the rights of the great commonwealth, or of any political party with absolute impartiality so that justice may be done. If this position can't be won on this high plane it must go to some one else, and I prefer defeat rather than to stoop to conquer.

I beg to remain,
Yours very truly,
R. L. Williams.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR OFFICE

There is no doubt that the people at this particular time should exercise great care in the selection of the officers. There is and can be no more important office to be filled than that of district court judge. The qualifications of the different aspirants for this office should be scanned closely.

Judge J. A. Baker of Wewoka, who is a candidate for the position, is a man of literary accomplishments as well as of legal learning and would be an honor to the judiciary. Hon. Louis Davies, a life-long friend of Judge Baker and one of the most distinguished members of the bar of the southwest, writes as follows:

Lawton, Okla., May 26, 1907.

Dear Baker:
I see you are a candidate for the judgeship of your district and I hope you may be successful. The people would make no mistake if they would select you. Your friends and the bar here think you will have little or no trouble in landing providing they know you, and of your ability as a lawyer there as we do here. However I see in some districts a disposition to select men who do not come up to the standard in learning or in ability. I can hardly understand this, for after all, the most important office in the gift of the people is the district judgeship. If those people over there know you as we do here, and how thoroughly equipped you are for the place, you could have no trouble, nor would there be any uncertainty as to the results. If a full knowledge of the law and of practice should be considered by the public as a test of worth and fitness for the place, with all due respect to whoever your opponents may be I know you would stand second to none.

Yours truly,
Louis Davis

Judge Baker has published a circular which contains many such endorsements as the foregoing and includes the bench and bar. Seminole county has several officers to select in common with Pontotoc county, but we ask the endorsement of but one and that is Judge Baker. We know his eminent fitness and qualification. Pontotoc county should deal fairly by us.

Christian Revival.

There was no service last night at the First Christian church on account of the rain which fell all day and made the streets impassable at night. The sermons that have been announced will be preached tonight and Thursday night if the rain does not again interfere.

The charts which have been hung up in the church are worthy of special emphasis.

FIFTEEN WAYS TO KILL A CHURCH

1. Stay away from it.
2. Do not identify yourself with it.
3. Do not give anything to it.
4. Criticize the pastor and members.
5. Discourage the Bible School.
6. Rule or ruin—"Be boss."
7. Go to places where church members should not go.
8. Be a tattler and busybody.
9. Quit praying.
10. Quit reading your Bible.
11. Take no religious paper.
12. Give nothing to missions.
13. Change pastors every year.
14. Keep his salary small.
15. Be a kicker.

"The best way to keep young people in the Bible School is to surround it with a wall of parents."

"Get the head and heart right with God and the life will be all right."

"What kind of a church would this church be if every member in it were just like me?"

"The best way to keep young people in the church is to give them something to do."

"Old folks need the same remedy."

The people who like good singing and can help are cordially invited to come and assist, whether they be members of the Christian church or of other churches. All are invited to come and hear the sermons from night to night.

Died.

On Monday the little boy baby, one of twins, of Mrs. and Mrs. C. Loman, who live in the south part of town, died from injuries received last Friday, when an older sister spilled a bucket of hot water on him. He was only fifteen months old. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the residence, conducted by Rev. T. B. Harrell. Interment was in Rose-dale cemetery. The News extends sincere sympathy to the sorrowing parents and other relatives.

Mrs. James Ernest living on west Main street, died yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Several days ago she was operated upon for a large abscess. It was a very dangerous operation, and she never recovered from it. The bereaved family has the sympathy of The News.

J. J. Copeland was here from Center today attending a meeting of the committee whose duty it was to attend to the ballots and boxes for the coming primary election.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remediation. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Amused Fair Bostonian.

An Iowa man tells of an incident in connection with an exposition held in the state, whereat one of the attractions was the Indian department, where the red men dwelt in their tepees and mimicked their own history in dances and mock fights. After one of these exhibitions by the Indians a Boston girl undertook to talk to a young Indian brave. "Heap much fight," she said. The red man smiled grimly, drew his blanket closer about his stalwart form and replied: "Yes, this is, indeed, a great exposition. We flatter ourselves that our portion of the entertainment is by no means the least attractive here. May I presume to ask who it is that I have the honor to address?" The Boston girl had been talking to a Carlisle graduate.

Poets' Poor Pay.

Milton's "Paradise Lost" has its importance in the history of publishing as well as of poetry. We are indignant at the miserable reward which the author received for his work, two payments of five pounds each and one of eight pounds (paid to his widow), making a total of £18 in all for the most famous poem in the English language.

But what previous English poem had been made the subject of a formal legal agreement, providing for payments on the publication of each of the first four editions? What English poet had previously earned £18 by a poem, not by a dole from a patron or a gift of a sinecure, but as a matter of business from a publisher?

Most Wasteful of Cooks.

To live to waste seems an unwritten maxim of English life. Our cooking, the cooking of our working and agricultural classes, is about the most wasteful cookery on earth. # MAINE HERMIT HUNTER

GREENLEAF DAVIS IS CHAMPION
BEAR KILLER OF STATE.

Although Four Score Years of Age He Still Enjoys Roaming the Forest
—Has Over Two Hundred
Hides to His Credit.

Patten, Me.—Greenleaf Davis, "the hermit of Shin pond," has killed more than 200 bears. Davis has held the record for having killed the most bears of any man in Maine for more than 20 years, and though he is now past 80 and lame and bent from rheumatism, no season passes without adding from one to five bears to his tally.

"When I was young," says he, "fat bears were almost as thick along the old growth beeches on the slopes of Mount Katahdin as red squirrels are today. In the fall, after the early frosts loosened the beechnuts, I could go out with an aged smooth-bore gun and shoot two or three most any day. Every fall father used to call us boys and make up a bear hunt to secure fresh bear's meat for roasting pieces all winter. Sometimes the hunt lasted a week, and sometimes longer, but we never quit until we had put by the carcasses of from six to ten fat bears.

"In the days when Tippecanoe ran for president there was no railroad track within 100 miles of where we resided, and if anyone had told us about Chicago dressed beef coming through to Maine in refrigerator cars we should have looked him up as insane.

"The hindquarter of a fat bear which had fed on beechnuts, when hung on a spit, roasted before a hardwood fire and basted in its own fat until it was all shiny brown, made eating that was good enough for the minister or the first selectman.

"The kidney fat of the bears, which was soft and oily like lard, was used for frying doughnuts and for bread shortening, while the harder belly fat was run up into candles for furnishing light for the house.

"I have eaten hundreds of brown doughnuts that were fried in bears' grease. That grease today I could sell to the druggists for five dollars a quart.

"As for the bearskins which we took off, they were rubbed on the fleshy side with powdered alum and salt and used for rugs and coverings for beds and robes to be used when taking long rides in cold weather. Nobody placed any value on the pelt of a bear then, for it was the meat we were after, and as the skin had to come off before we could get at the flesh and fat, we considered the hairy covering as a sort of by-product.

"One could buy all the bear pelts he wanted 60 or 70 years ago for $1 to $1.25 each, and now those same pelts would bring $20 apiece." On the death of his father, 50 years ago, Mr. Davis inherited a log house and log sawmill, driven by water power, and a township containing more than 23,000 acres of thirty timber land. Now he has but a few acres surrounding his aged home on the shores of Shin pond.

Henry D. Thoreau, the philosopher of Concord, Mass., visited Mount Katahdin in 1843 to secure material for his book, "Maine Woods," and Mr. Davis spent weeks in roaming the forests with him.

In addition to being a hunter and fisherman, Mr. Davis is something of an original investigator into natural history, and he takes considerable pride in his prior announcement that the beautiful markings on rock maple, called "birdseye," are caused by woodpeckers seeking for the sweet sap, the dents of the sharp bills leaving scars, which turn to a reddish hue.

GREENLEAF DAVIS.

From May until November, yearly, the veteran hunter lives in his bachelor's hall at Shin pond, but for the last few years, as he is older and feebler than before, he goes to Patten village to avoid the rigors of a winter in the woods.

Not only is Mr. Davis an optimist, a naturalist, a hunter and philosopher, he is a poet, too, of some ability, and many of his metrical sketches have been printed in local Maine papers and in the New York sporting and outing journals.

WATCH THE SIGNALS

ENGINEERS TRAINED TO EXTREME CAREFULNESS.

"Surprise Tests" Constructed by Eastern Railroad Proved Men at Throttle Were Worthy of Their Responsibility.

"The engineer disregarded signals." In future this verdict will seldom be reached in investigations into railroad accidents. Recent "surprise tests" held by an eastern railroad showed that only three per cent. of more than 2,000 engineers ran past "danger" and "caution" signals suddenly sprung upon them. This means that the engineer is being trained to closer regard for signals, and that the modern system of signaling has facilitated this training.

On the railroad automatic telegraph block and interlocking switch and signal systems are used. Automatic signals are controlled by the train, and human agency has nothing to do with their operation. The telegraph block signal system and the interlocking switch and signal system each require an operator to manipulate. The automatic signal does not require an attendant. At block signal stations the rules of the company require that the operator report to the proper officials any engineer not properly observing all signals. With the automatic block signal system, however, the signals are located between these offices, where there is no one to report non-observance of the signals. The automatic system thus naturally affords the best opportunity for "surprise tests."

In automatic signaling two signals appear to the engineer. The "home" signal is with reference to the block immediately ahead. If that shows "white" he may proceed. If it shows "red" he must come to a stop before passing the signal. If he passes the signal by as much as five feet he has

AS TO SPEED AND SAFETY.

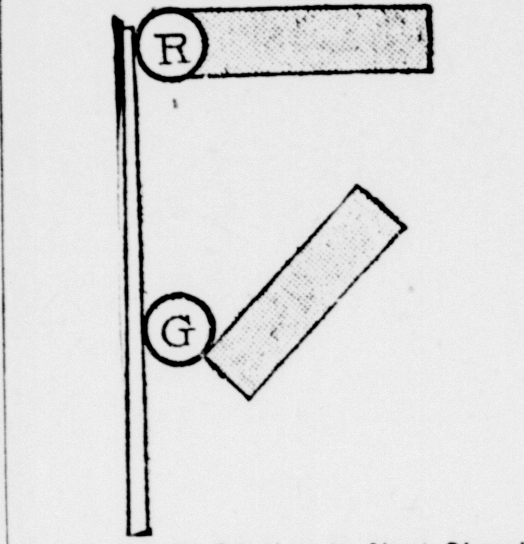

It Is Asserted That Slower Trains Less Often Meet with Disaster.

It is no new defense that the railroads are making, when confronted with the result of disasters to their fastest and best trains, that the great demand of the public for extra speed compels the shortening of time. This attempted justification has been put forward for a number of years, and there is no disputing that the traveling public does make this requirement. But is the admitted fact, says the Boston Herald, a justification for the increased speed without a corresponding advance in the conditions of safety?

In demanding to be carried in the shortest possible time, between, say, New York and Chicago, do travelers relinquish their right to the exercise of due caution by the carrying corporation? Even if they choose to so relinquish, is the company justified in neglecting properly to guard them against the fatal effect of their own inclinations? A man is forcibly restrained from committing suicide when the attempt is discovered in time. The railroad officials say they are using the best machinery and the most perfect type of equipment and are constantly trying to secure the most complete safeguards against accident. But, meantime, the proportion of fatal casualties, when compared to numbers of people carried, increases. Official statistics have shown that the ratio of passengers killed to those carried is nearly six times greater here than in Great Britain, and seven times greater than in Germany. The railroads in Great Britain have faster trains than ours, but the accidents are far less.

The country has not forgotten the report made by the Interstate commerce commission last August, showing that for the last 11 years there had been a daily average of 40 railway accidents, 21 persons killed and 140 maimed or injured—the aggregate being $4,244 lives lost and 555,855 persons injured in the 11 years. When one railroad reduces its running time from New York to Chicago to 18 hours, and a rival road makes the same reduction, the combat is on. The admiring public responds and the rush is encouraged, while the contestants fight for the business with all the improved appointments and luxuries that liberal management can supply. But as for safety, the passengers leave all that to the railroad officials, and too often the railroad attitude is reflected in the question, "If we spend all necessary money for perfect equipment, and if our own directors are not afraid to ride on the trains, why shouldn't the public demand for speed be met?"

violated orders, and is therefore subject to discipline. Each "home" signal has its distance signal, which indicates whether its "home" signal is clear or not, and displays either "white" or "green." "Green" is a "caution" signal, and requires the engineer to get his train under control so that he can stop at the "home" signal. This does not necessarily mean that the train must slow down immediately if it can pass at a high rate of speed and still be able to stop at the next signal. "Caution" does not mean "stop." In the "surprise tests" distance signals were set at "green," "home" signals at "red," at places where engineers are accustomed to find them "white" fuses were displayed, and torpedoes were placed on the track at unusual places, switch lights extinguished, and everything in connection with signaling trains was placed either at a "caution" or "danger" position.

Other tests have been made by the road. On August 4, 23 and 24, and October 3 and 5 last year special tests were held at certain stations. On these occasions a total of 291 trains passed the signal stations during the tests, and all but 15 came to full stops before reaching the testing point. Every one of the 15 delinquents brought his engine to a full stop before getting more than a few feet beyond the signal. But even in these cases, where the error was simply one of judgment in handling the air brakes, every one of the engineers was severely disciplined—in some cases as much as 30 days' suspension being imposed.

Of 189 trains tested on the main line of the road recently 98 per cent. obeyed the rules absolutely. The remaining two per cent. in not carrying out the rules of the company were severely disciplined. Tests made on the New York division, where trains are operated so frequently and many on high-speed schedules, gave a perfect record in the observance of the company's rules. The records show a constant decrease in the percentage of those not disobeying implicitly all orders.

The fact that slower trains are provided and that these trains less often meet with great disasters fairly indicates the approach of competent and systematic restriction of speed within safety bounds, even if below public demand and corporation concession.

Dad Murphy's Brevity.

Old Dad Murphy, as he was affectionately known to the boys on the road, was a conductor on a trunk line, transporting large shipments of live stock from the west. Dad had been in the service so long that the rules of railroading had become second nature to him, and the result of the superintendent's frequent orders to the trainmen to answer with military brevity all questions and messages, especially those by telegraph, to relieve the burden on the wires, had reduced Dad to habitually short, concise replies, even to his conversation. On a baking hot July day, when not a breath of air was stirring, and the sun beat on the car roofs till the pitch pulled the soles off the brakeman's shoes, Dad, in looking over his train, discovered that eight hogs had succumbed to the heat. When passing the next telegraph station he threw off a message to the superintendent.

"Burhans! Supt.—Eight hogs dead acc't heat, advise."

"MURPHY, NO. 73."

At the second telegraph office received his answer:

"Murphy, Cond., 78.—What is the present condition of the hogs?"

"BURHANS."

Dad grunted, shifted his quid of fine cut and wrote as follows:

"Burhans, Supt.—Eight hogs dead acc't heat, advise."

—Judge's Library.

Bears Try to Board Train.

Two black bears trying to board the east-bound Pennsylvania limited, due here at ten o'clock in the morning, caused excitement among the passengers and crew. The train was running between Portage and Bens Creek on the summit of the Alleghenies when the stenographer, John McEllen, discovered the bears in pursuit. Passengers watched the race from the rear of the observation car.

One bear ran along the west-bound track, while the other took the east-bound track. At a curve in the road the latter attempted to leap on the train, but missed the observation platform. The bears kept up the chase nearly two miles and were then lost to sight in the woods.

Walter Wynecoop, a brakeman, noticed the same bears following the limited several weeks ago. At that time the pair broke up a tramp's camp, which had been thriving at Kittanning Point during the winter.—Altoona correspondence Pittsburg Dispatch.

OLD WALL ROUND CITY

CAMPECHE, MEXICO, AS ROMANTIC AS ANCIENT SPAIN.

High Walls of the Once Important Seacoast Town of Yucatan Are as Strong To-day as When Finished in 1759.

Mexico City.—In stories of Unknown Mexico, which sweep in and out of one's view and hearing, there is here and there a touch that makes its lasting impression. Ancient Indians, long dead civilizations, and ruined abbeys all have their own peculiar interest, general in a way, but in the final analysis of chief interest to the archaeologist. But there are other tales of old Mexico which are calculated to thrill or at least interest every reader. Such a story would be that of a walled city, still such a city as it was when the walls were built, and now tinged with the romance of the old days which has been softened by imagination and the forgetting of unpleasant things. Here in Mexico is located at least one such city, and, probably without doubt, the possessor of the only ancient walls which still retain their shape, are still unbroken, and still serve in some measure as a part of the city's life. Campeche, the ancient capital of the penitentiary colony of Yucatan is today surrounded by the same walls which the Spanish garrisons of the vice-regal days erected in the substantial fashion of the past as a protection against marauding Indians and organized bands of Spanish and Mexican convicts.

Campeche is one of the most interesting of hot country capitals. Once the great outlet of the rich peninsula of Yucatan, the city is now but little more than a quiet hot-country town.

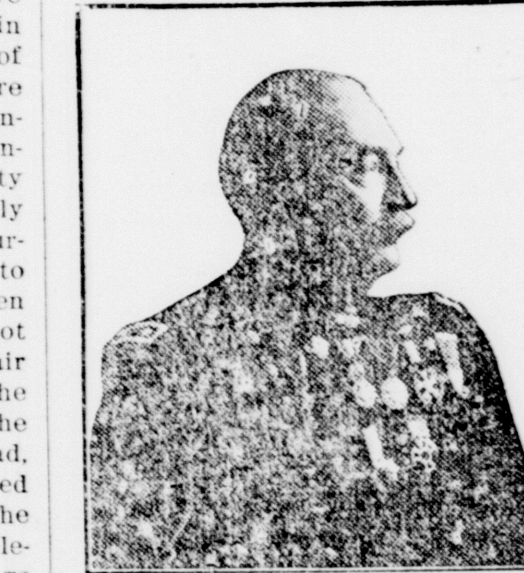

Campeche is one of the oldest capitals of Mexico. Although the chief port of the criminal colony of Yucatan, the histories tell also of its exports of the riches of the tropics to the great ports of Europe. It was most prominent in the eyes of seamen as the last sight of Mexico, often of America, in the long trip across the Atlantic. As such, it was a port which was watched closely by the pirates who infested the sea in those days when the broad American waters were known as the "Spanish Main." To it came the rich Spanish galleons from Vera Cruz and Coatzacoalcas, and from it, with enriched cargoes, they sailed for Cuba and for Spain. It was a great city in those days, when the ships could come close into its shallow but well protected harbor, and as such it was well guarded and garrisoned.

ARMY VETERAN RETIRED.

Gen. Wade Has Served Country for Nearly 50 Years.

Washington.—Maj. Gen. James F. Wade was retired from active service a few days ago, having reached the age limit, 64 years. Forty-six years of this time he has devoted to the service of his country.

At the opening of the civil war he enlisted in the Twenty-ninth regiment, which was organized in this part of the state. Shortly afterward he was made first lieutenant in the Sixth United States cavalry. He was in active service through the entire war—serving for some time on Gen. Sheridan's staff, and also with Gen. Pleasanton. Toward the close of the war he was in command of the Fifth volunteer colored cavalry. He received many brevets for gallantry and was mustered out of the volunteer service April 15, 1866. He did not join his regiment, the Sixth United States cavalry, but took a leave, and while spending the summer in Jefferson, was offered a majority in the Ninth United States colored cavalry. He was with that regiment 13 years, serving most of the time in Texas and New Mexico.

GEN. JAMES F. WADE.
(Army Officer Recently Placed on the Retired List.)

In 1879 he was promoted to Lieut. Col. of the Eighteenth cavalry, and served with that regiment in Texas and Arizona, until 1887, when he was promoted to colonel of the Fifth cavalry, with service in the Indian Territory and Texas, until 1897, when he was made a brigadier general and placed in command of the department of Dakota, with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn. At the opening of the Spanish war he was made major general of volunteers and sent south to assist in the organization of troops, hoping and expecting that he would be sent to Cuba.

At the end of the war, he was mustered out of the volunteer service and

The work on the wall was begun in 1692, and an inscription over the principal gate states that it was completed in 1769, having been 77 years in building. In form and walls spread over an irregular seven-sided polygon, with bastions at each of the corners, and massive octagonal forts at the water's edge. The walls are eight meters, or 26 feet high, and are four meters or 12½ feet thick, all of solid masonry, apparently as strong to-day as when they were built, with the exception of the four or five places where the walls have been thrown down to make way for roads communicating with the outside.

A moat, now almost obliterated, once surrounded the walls, and was an added protection from surprise. It is worthy of note that in the accounts presented to Carlos IV in 1769, the cost of the fortifications of Campeche are placed at $225,024.

As the only walled city in Mexico, Campeche demands a very special attention, but when it is realized that those walls are perfect, that their gray, softening griminess is real and not a stage effect, and that old Spain itself has no more romantic pictures than those to be found about those very walls, one feels that the sight is worth the long trip, and even worth the walks in the sun (though it is easy to let the sun convince one otherwise). The frowning bastions of the corners, where once protruded the old iron cannons which are now stuck muzzle-down in the corners of the gates, the forward walls of the main gate, where riflemen could pick off the parties of attacking Indians or convicts, and the rare old main gate itself, with its little lookout, the balcony windows from which the challenges once came, are all touches which one does not realize can be encountered anywhere but in Europe. Yet here in Campeche they stand, as romantic and silent and natural as though they had been built in the days of El Cid and not in the more prosaic epoch of Charles the Fourth, when all were a questionable protection, and chivalry was of the type of Don Quixote.

MARRIAGE MEDALS LATEST.

New French Idea Taken Up by Americans.

New York.—Spring weddings have this year an element of novelty so far as the presents are concerned, which the talent of a French medallist now in New York has made possible. The wedding medal has just been put on the market by a firm of jewelers, and at many of the spring marriages there has been seen such a gift on the table of presents. It is usually given by the bridegroom to the bride or by the bride to her husband, although it may be presented by any friend or relative in lieu of an ordinary gift.

Latest Wedding Novelty.

These marriage medals are made of silver and are about two inches in diameter. On one side is a pair of figures draped in classical fashion and on the other is a wreath of laurel bearing the words "Souvenir de Mariage," and after that are the names of the contracting parties, with the date and the words "Prosperite" and "Bonheur." The silver is frosted and the workmanship of the medallions exquisitely fine.

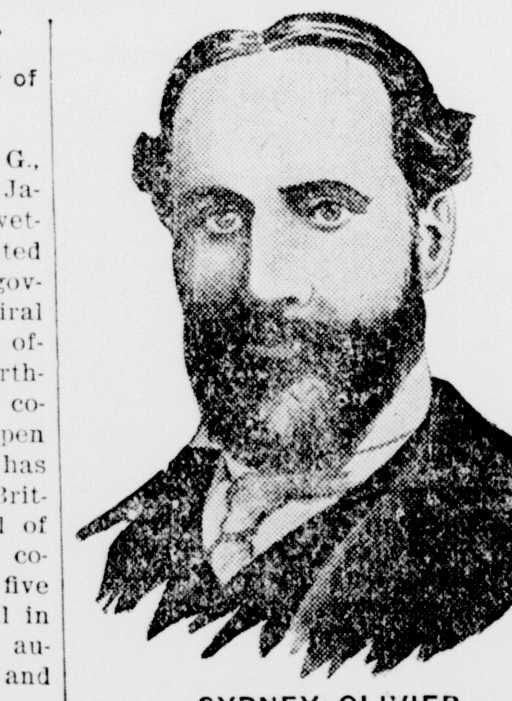

More Sleep Called For.

Most mothers rise at a certain hour and do their day's work. Now, if they go out visiting and stay later than their usual hour for retiring, they have used up more of their vital force than usual, says a writer. If a mother has been up and about for 20 hours instead of 16, she is more tired, needs more rest. If she gets up at the usual hour—sleeps six instead of eight hours—she goes to work with lowered vitality is sooner exhausted, and instead of working upon the force stored in every part of her by sleep, she works upon her nerves, upon brain and muscular matter—not the overplus of their energy; and working upon our capital of any sort is the easiest way of going into bankruptcy. More sleep, if more tired, is the sensible way.

REWARD FOR LONG SERVICE.

Sydney Olivier Appointed Governor of Jamaica.

London.—Sydney Olivier, C. M. G., has been appointed governor of Jamaica to succeed Sir Alexander Swettenham, whose resignation resulted from the demand of the British government that he apologize to Admiral Davis, U. S. N., for the insults he offered him at the time of the earthquake. Mr. Olivier entered the colonial office at the top of the open competition, 25 years ago. He has been acting colonial secretary of British Honduras and auditor general of the Leeward Islands. He was colonial secretary of Jamaica for five years and acting governor general in three different years. He is the author of many articles of socialism and economic.

SYDNEY OLIVIER.

CRADLE ROCKED BY THE WIND.

The Gilyak Baby Is Put to Sleep in Odd Contrivance.

New York.—"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" has no significance among the Gilyaks, who live in the northern part of the island of Saghalin. Their cradles are not rocked by hand. They are suspended instead from the swinging branches of trees outside in fine weather, just as they were in the days of Peter the Great. It is said that Russia's famous ruler was when a child rocked to sleep in a cradle of this kind, as shown in the accompanying picture.

The cradle of the Gilyak baby is made from pieces of bark bent to the required shape and fastened together by thongs of deerskin. There are a hood and two rings from which to suspend the cradle, but there are no rockers or springs.

On fine days the Gilyak mother suspends the cradle from the branch of a slender tree rocked by the wind and puts her baby to sleep there without having to do any cradle-rocking herself. In disagreeable weather it is different. The cradle is suspended from the rafters indoors.

FURMAN FINISHING FAR AHEAD

As election day fast approaches it becomes more manifest day by day that Henry M. Furman will lead all his opponents for the United States senate.

From all parts of the new state come reliable reports that Furman is the favorite among the plain, unpretentious people. In some places where he speaks he is received with demonstrations amounting to no less than ovations. The indications are unmistakable that he will get a heavy vote in all localities.

It is a beautiful race Furman is running. In this campaign unprecedented in the amount of money expended with opponents big rich spending thousands upon thousands in hiring helpers and boosters and in buying literature and newspaper space. Nevertheless Furman marches serenely on toward the goal without money to buy help, spending to so commercialize the campaign even had he the money depending solely on the hearty support of his friends and on the great body of unmercenary voters.

And Furman is marching on with confidence for well he knows the vast majority of sovereign voters are unpretentious and unguileful and are not snobs and parasites to be attracted by fuss and display and by the gleam of gold.

When Furman goes to the senate what a satisfaction and an honor it will be that not a single vote that helped send him will have been bought or coerced. Every one of them the ballot of a free and independent citizen.

That is the way Furman is going to Washington. Then when he gets there he will be a free and independent citizen for the rest of his life.

SOME REASONS FOR OTIS B. WEAVER FOR THE STATE SENATE

He has the intellectual and common sense qualifications for the office—just as have other men in this district among them farmers, editors, lawyers and men of other occupations.

He is a man to be trusted, one whose integrity no one can question. The scoundrel who tried to buy him off would have to fight.

He is in full sympathy with the masses, their interests are his every time they come in conflict with the classes. Sprung from old Southern planter stock his sympathies abide with the man between the plowshares, and with all other men who eat their bread in the sweat of their brow. He wishes them to have more bread and more than bread.

He has during the past few years as newspaper editor developed a taste for and acquired a thorough knowledge of public affairs and statecraft also has acquired a wide acquaintance with public men of the coming state, both of which should be of great value in equipping him for a legislator worth while one who will be heard from.

He has already won his spurs in the service of the public. For the good of his country and his town he has been notably generous in his support of every worthy cause—supporting them with his newspapers, his pocket book his hands and with his tongue. To such an extent is this true that it is a common comment that Weaver has given and done more for this section than any other man.

He possesses a passion for making things go which he takes hold of during his term of president of Indian Territory Press Association and from a listless, poorly organized body to the present efficient and powerful organization it is. As commander of the Indian Territory Division, United Sons of Confederate Veterans, he threw such zeal into the organization as to make the old veterans' hearts swell with pride and make those who it touched the remnants look up and take notice of Indian Territory. He is one of those who initiated in this Territory the Good Roads movement. I wish there were who spent more time or money in the cause of education. It is a continuous pleasure to him to work for the public weal.

He is an enthusiastic hard working party man. According to his means and opportunity no man has done more for Democracy. The mere suggestion of party service needed—this to him is a command to action.

The enthusiasm, the integrity, the capacity to accomplish things, these attributes he would carry with him into the state senate and into the work of framing a code of laws. In these days of intense action there is no room for drones and mere wind jammers in our legislative hall.

He has told the people in black and white what he would do as a state senator. They can read his definite promises in his platform and other utterances and can keep tab on him to see if he makes good his pledges.

He is a man who has made a record for keeping his promises and fulfilling all obligations. In this land repute to team with winners, not the faintest imputation of grifter has touched his name. He has been weighed and not been found wanting on any score.

The principles he advocates are just such as every honest patriotic voter must endorse such as if carried into effect will insure a splendid code of state laws.

He makes the paramount plank in his platform a wise disposition of the new state school lands, such a disposition of them that the children will obtain the most possible education and the farmers may obtain homes and borrow cheap money from the state school fund. Read carefully his school land plan. This question is by far the most important part of the first legislature's work.

He stands well at home. He enjoys the esteem and confidence of his neighbors. Without this a man is in poor position to command the confidence of strangers.

Put Weaver in the state senate and make no mistake.

RALLYING TO FURMAN

The Plain People Everywhere Rejoice
That Their Champion

Editor of the News: Judge Henry M. Furman spoke in Ada Monday afternoon to a very appreciative crowd. Should he continue to make votes as he did here, he will certainly be one of Oklahoma's first senators, which the writer sincerely hopes he will be.

Mr. Furman is a man of the plain people and is for the masses against the classes. He will be a power for the good of the general masses if given the opportunity to stand up in the halls of the United States senate. In him there is no equivocation, he stands out in the limelight of justice to all men whatever be their politics so long as their work is for the building up of the great brotherhood of man and the purification of the laws and the welfare of the great masses of our common country.

The people in this section have an intense admiration for Judge Furman, that noblest stalwart of democracy and lasting friend of the people of greater Oklahoma.

MAINE HERMIT HUNTER

GREENLEAF DAVIS IS CHAMPION BEAR KILLER OF STATE.

Although Four Score Years of Age He Still Enjoys Roaming the Forest—Has Over Two Hundred Hides to His Credit

Patten, Me.—Greenleaf Davis, the hermit of Shin pond, has killed more than 200 bears. Davis has held the record for having killed the most bears of any man in Maine for more than 20 years, and though he is now past 80 and time and bent from rheumatism no season passes without adding from one to five bears to his tally.

When I was young, says he, fat bears were almost as thick along the old growth beeches on the slopes of Mount Katahdin as red squirrels are today. In the fall after the early frosts loosened the beechnuts, I could go out with a red smooth bore gun and shoot two or three most any day.

I never kill rather use to call us boys and make up a bear hunt to secure fresh bears meat for roasting pieces all winter. Sometimes the hunt lasted a week and sometimes longer but we never quit until we had put by the carcasses of from six to ten fat bears.

In the days when the company for president there was no road to track with horses or where we resided and it seems had told us bear killing dressed in bear skins, through the Maine forest. I have seen small bear cubs in the forest.

The killing of a fat bear which I did in the forest with a gun and a knife in its paw was a great feat. I was told that it was a great feat.

GREENLEAF DAVIS (Champion Bear Killer of Maine is an Octogenarian)

On the death of his father, 50 years ago, Mr. Davis inherited a log house and log sawmill driven by water power and a township containing more than 23,000 acres of timber land. Now he has but a few acres surrounding his aged home on the shores of Shin pond.

Henry D. Thoreau the philosopher of Concord, Mass. visited Mount Katahdin in 1841 to secure material for his book, "Maine Woods" and Mr. Davis spent weeks in roaming the forests with him.

In addition to being a hunter and fisherman, Mr. Davis is something of an original investigator into natural history and he takes considerable pride in his pile of animal skins and the beautiful markings on rock maple.

WATCH THE SIGNALS

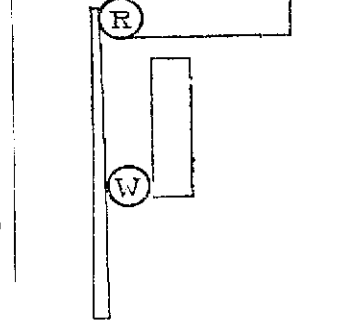

ENGINEERS TRAINED TO EXTREME CAREFULNESS.

"Surprise Tests" Constructed by Eastern Railroad Proved Men at Throttle Were Worthy of Their Responsibility.

"The engineer disregarded signals. In future this verdict will seldom be reached in investigations into railroad accidents. Recent 'surprise tests' held by an eastern railroad showed that only three per cent of more than 2,000 engineers ran past danger and caution signals and deny spring upon them. This means that the engineer is being trained to observe signals and that the modern system of signaling has facilitated this training.

On the railroad automatic telegraph block and interlocking switch and signal systems are used. Automatic signals are controlled by the train and the engineer has nothing to do with the operation. The telegraph block switch system and the interlocking switch and signal system each require cooperation to manipulate. The automatic and block do not require it at all.

At block signal stations the engineer is required to report to the proper officials. The engineer is required to observe the signals and to report to the proper officials. The engineer is required to observe the signals and to report to the proper officials.

violated orders, and is therefore subject to discipline. Each 'home' signal has its distance signal, which indicates whether its 'home' signal is clear or not, and displays either 'white' or 'green'. 'Green' is a 'caution' signal and requires the engineer to get his train under control so that he can stop at the 'home' signal. This does not necessarily mean that the train must slow down immediately if it can pass at a high rate of speed and still be able to stop at the next signal. 'Caution' does not mean stop. OLD WALL ROUND CITY

CAMPECHE, MEXICO, AS ROMANTIC AS ANCIENT SPAIN.

High Walls of the Once Important Seacoast Town of Yucatan Are as Strong To-day as When Finished in 1769.

Mexico City.—In stories of Unknown Mexico which sweep in and out of one's view and hearing, there is here and there a touch that makes its last ing impression. Ancient Indians, long dead civilizations, and ruined abbeys all have their own peculiar interest general in a way but in the final analysis of chief interest to the archaeologist. But there are other tales of old Mexico which are calculated to thrill or at least interest every reader. Such a story would be that of a walled city still such a city as it was when the walls were built and now tinged with the romance of the old days which has been softened by imagination and the forgetting of unpleasant things. Here in Mexico is located at least one such city and probably without doubt the possessor of the only intact walls which still remain in the state of unbroken and still serve in some measure as a part of the city's life. Campeche the ancient capital of the peninsula of Yucatan is today surrounded by the same walls which the Spanish conquerors of the Aztec empire erected in the substantial fashion of the past as a protection against marauding Indians and or unwarlike birds of Spanish and Mexican convicts.

The work on the wall was begun in 1692, and an inscription over the principal gate states that it was completed in 1769, having been 77 years in building. In form and walls spread over an irregular seven sided polygon, with bastions at each of the corners, and massive octagonal forts at the water's edge. The walls are eight meters, or 26 feet high and are four meters or 12 1/2 feet thick all of solid masonry, apparently as strong to day as when they were built, with the exception of the four or five places where the walls have been thrown down to make way for roads communicating with the outside.

A moat now almost obliterated, once surrounded the walls, and was an added protection from surprise. It is worthy of note that in the accounts presented to Carlos IV in 1769 the cost of the fortifications of Campeche are placed at $225,024.

As the only walled city in Mexico, Campeche demands a very special attention but when it is realized that

WILLIAMS MAKES REPLY

Wishes Campaign for Supreme Judge Conducted On Dignified Plane

May 26, 1907.
Tishomingo, Indian Territory.

Dear Sir:

Upon my return home I find yours of the 18th instant, which you state that, last night when you made public announcement of your candidacy for the supreme bench that William H. Murray, your fellow townsman, came with a telegram from me and read same to audience, and that Murray by his acts and words, emphatically placed me before the people of your county as a candidate relying upon the Haskell forces for my nomination, and that you believe that there is an effort on his part to make the issues between us for the supreme bench the same as the issues between Mr. Cruise and Haskell, and that you desire to know from me whether I ratify or reject the action of Mr. Murray.

In reply I beg to state that that telegram I sent Mr. Murray did not relate to the gubernatorial race, as you well know, but related to a personal matter between you and Mr. Murray, and I presume that accounts for Mr. Murray declaring against you. Mr. Murray well knows what I think about the propriety of a man aspiring for a high judicial position taking part in factional politics, and knows I do not think such a course would be wise or proper; that it would tend to destroy the dignity of the bench, and to bring judicial positions down to a lower plane. I want you to distinctly understand that I do not propose to be aligned with the candidacy of any man or any set of men by you. I place the destinies and the fortunes of the democratic party high above the ambitions of any man, and the hope and boon of stardom above any other consideration except that honest and just government. I note that you say that your canvass is against me, and that you think that the people are entitled to see us and hear us in a public canvass of the issues that might arise. I want you to distinctly understand that my canvass is not against you, and I am not seeking the office upon your demands, but upon the people's merits. I would never take a high judicial position, nor represent the interests of my opponent. It does seem to me that when you were going before you must have been angry with some one and that your attitude upon the attitude you were taking before the people of this county, I think that the honor and good of stardom above any other consideration except that honest and just government.

I am not seeking the office upon your demands, but upon the people's merits. I would never take a high judicial position, nor represent the interests of my opponent. It does seem to me that when you were going before you must have been angry with some one and that your attitude upon the attitude you were taking before the people of this county, I think that the honor and good of stardom above any other consideration except that honest and just government. I note that you say that your canvass is against me, and that you think that the people are entitled to see us and hear us in a public canvass of the issues that might arise. I want you to distinctly understand that my canvass is not against you, and I am not seeking the office upon your demands, but upon the people's merits. I would never take a high judicial position, nor represent the interests of my opponent. It does seem to me that when you were going before you must have been angry with some one and that your attitude upon the attitude you were taking before the people of this county, I think that the honor and good of stardom above any other consideration except that honest and just government.

When issues are there between men seeking high judicial positions other than of qualification? My qualifications are before the people, and I propose to submit the issues to them with a proper regard for the propriety in seeking a judicial position. I note that you say you want to have a joint canvass of the issues that may arise. What issues can arise between two men that are seeking a judicial position respecting the propriety that should go with that exalted place? Now if you wish this joint canvass with the view of making any charges against me I will never to arrange two dates with you at such time as I conveniently can, to speak at Durant and Muskogee. If you have any charges to make against me I am willing to justify you, but I want them to be made among people where I have lived practically ever since I came to the Indian Territory. I want to say I have no charges to make against you. If that is to be the price of my election to the bench, then I propose to remain a private citizen, exercising the rights and privileges of a private citizen.

I write this letter both in sadness and in disappointment to think you have this kind of a conception of men seeking this high and exalted place. I want to say to you that the aim of my personal conduct in this campaign shall be so that if I am elected to the place that I can go into the judicial cloister and determine any case where the rights of my fellow man are involved and the rights of the great commonwealth, or of any political party with absolute impartiality so that justice may be done. If this position can't be won on this high plane it must go to some one else, and I prefer defeat rather than to stoop to congeal.

I beg to remain
Yours very truly,
R. L. Williams.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR OFFICE

There is no doubt that the people at this particular time should exercise great care in the selection of the officers. There is and can be no more important office to be filled than that of district court judge. The qualifications of the different aspirants for this office should be carefully noted.

Judge J. A. Baker, of Wewoka, who is a candidate for the position, is a man of many accomplishments and well as of legal learning and would be an honor to the judiciary. Hon. Louis Davies, a former friend of Judge Baker and one of the most distinguished members of the bar of the southwest, writes as follows:

Lawton, Okla., May 26, 1907.
Dear Sir:
I see you are a candidate for the judgeship of your district and I hope you may be successful. The people would make no mistake if they would select you. Your friends and the bar here think you will have little trouble in finding a prevailing opinion on the 8th day of June. I am a lawyer here as we do here. However I see in some districts a disposition to select men who do not come up to the standard in learning or ability. I can hardly understand this, for after all, the most important office in the gift of the people is the judicial judgeship. If those people ever there know you as we do here, and how thoroughly equipped you are for the place, you could have no trouble, nor would there be any uncertainty as to the results. If a full knowledge of the law and of practice should be considered by the public as a test of worth and fitness for the place with all due respect to whoever your opponents may be, I know you would stand second to none.

Yours truly,
Louis Davies.

Judge Davies has published a circular which contains many such endorsements as the foregoing, and includes the bench and bar. Senators and my law society officers to select in connection with District court, but we ask the endorsement of but one and that is Judge Baker. We know his entire fitness and qualifications. Pontotoc county should deal fairly to us.

Thos. S. Cobb, of Wewoka, Bar.

Vote for M. E. TRAPP of Guthrie for State Auditor, Democratic Primary June 8th.

TO DO Good

Medicines must contain potent ingredients.

Medicines we compound are prepared from pure, standard strength drugs, which are guaranteed under the "Pure Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906."

That's why our prescription work is so satisfactory to physicians.

Medicines put up here will have the effect your doctor desires.

Burnt Clay Ware Facts.

We have now ready for immediate shipment 800,000 Brick. In addition to making building brick we are now prepared to make Vitrified Hollow Building Blocks. They are impervious to moisture, are fire proof and vermin proof. There is no other material known which equals it for building purposes. They are cheaper and better than either lumber, stone or concrete. The ideal material for cellars, walls, barns, stables, warehouses, residences, etc. We make to order hollow brick for partitions ready to plaster on. No lathing required. We make drain tile from 3 to 18 inches in diameter, and vitrified sidewalk and street paving brick, red, chocolate, brown and salt-glazed face brick. Nothing will go through fire and stand but burnt clay. Lumber burns up and stone and cement crumbles from heat and water in case of fire. Ask them at San Francisco. Write for further information.
